

ANGEL ANNOUNCES FOR COUNTY JUDGE

Sterling Democrat, Once Holding This Office in Laurel, Offers Services to Party Here

The first candidate to announce for the office of County Judge of Madison county is Judge G. B. Angel, of the Berea section of the county, who offers for the democratic nomination. His announcement is given below.

Judge Angel owns a large farm near Berea, and is very popular in that section of the county, and his friends are predicting that when his sterling honesty, integrity and devotion to duty are fully known, he will be just as popular elsewhere.

His democracy is of the mountain variety—which means the best and truest. He came to Madison a number of years ago from Laurel county. Now Laurel county is about 2,000 or 3,000 republican, and as is other mountain counties, a democrat usually has very little chance for official honors. In fact, to be a democrat at all in some such communities brands a man as one of unusual stability of character and purpose and as a firm and steadfast believer in the principles of the great party of Jefferson, Jackson and Woodrow Wilson. Everywhere such conditions are known, democrats are often called "fighting democrats," and Judge Angel is just that brand.

However, he is the kind of democrat and citizen in whom those who know him have the utmost confidence and respect, regardless of party. This is proven well by the fact that while a resident of Laurel county, he accepted the democratic nomination for county judge in one county election, overturned the great republican majority and was elected County Judge—a feat that no democrat had accomplished before in that rock-ribbed republican county perhaps since the Civil War. And his friends are now saying that he can do the same thing here in Madison county.

Judge Angel makes a clean-cut statement of his position in his announcement which reads as follows:

Judge Angel's Announcement
I announce myself a candidate for the democratic nomination for County Judge of Madison county in the primary election to be held August 6, 1921, subject to the will of the voters in said primary. I was born in the northeast corner of Laurel county, Ky., December 18, 1875, have farmed all my life. I moved to Marion county in 1917 then to this county in 1918. My father bought a farm in Madison county in 1903. I have had business here since and still own the farm. I was twice appointed Justice of the Peace in the 3rd Magisterial district of Laurel county, was once elected from said district and was elected County Judge of Laurel county. My residence at the present time is near Berea.

In announcing myself a candidate for County Judge of Madison county in the coming August primary, I do so after informing myself as best I can of the situation in this county, that we may properly adjust ourselves to meet the issues that are shortly to come. I believe every member of a political party should be free to discuss issues and candidates and to arrive at conclusions most satisfactory. In a multitude of counsel there is safety. Of course the primary law was intended for that purpose, but I think at this time in this county any candidate for any office should be far more submissive. A long drawn out and hotly contested primary will injure the candidate, the party and the community. This is no time for divided counsel or action.

Think this matter over; inquire, consult your neighbor, and if you find an available person whom you believe stronger, or fits into the circumstances better, let me know. In doing this you will help yourself, benefit me, and do a service to your county. I feel that no person with selfish motives can accomplish much in this matter. The need of the people of this county to have a man as chairman of your Fiscal Court whose integrity and business ability to take care of the expenditures of your money so far as it is within his power to do, and the taking care of the estates of deceased and infant persons, and his inclination to enforce the criminal law, is at all times imperative. Any man who wants an office just for the job, is not fit to serve. Let us place upon our ticket, clean, efficient and conscientious men. If I am not one of those, let me know and it will just take three minutes to eliminate me.

G. B. ANGEL.

$700 REWARD FOR DRY AGENT'S SLAYER IN BELL

Pineville, Ky., March 23—State and county rewards totaling $700 have been offered for the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Constable Levi Mason, 40 years old, one of the most fearless raiders of the mountains, who was slain near the home of Rosa Jane Wilson, 12 miles from here on Brown's Creek, near Miracle, at midnight Sunday.

Roscoe Wilson had been slain there Sunday and Granville Cox was accused of the slaying. Officers went to the scene and seized a 40-gallon copper still near the home. They then scattered to go up the ravine. In a few minutes other officers heard several shots and returned to find Mason dead with a bullet hole through his heart. Officers are confident they know the slayer.

County Judge Robert Vanbever held Cox in $5,000 bond for the slaying of Mason at the same time making a bitter denunciation of moonshining and pledging the power of his office in destroying the traffic.

An agent from the office of Chief Prohibition Officer Harry J. Klaine, Lexington, is expected here to assist in the effort to apprehend the slayer of Mason. The request for the agent was made by United States Commissioner Sam Rollins of this city.

WEBER GETS CONTRACT TO DESIGN NEW SCHOOL

Newport Architect Chosen to Assist School Board in Plans for Rebuilding Caldwell

E. A. Weber and Bros., of Newport, were selected as architects to plan for the reconstruction work of the Caldwell graded school at a special meeting of the City Board of Education Tuesday night.

Mr. Weber will receive a fee of five per cent of the amount to be expended. Two other architectural firms asked six per cent for their work. These firms were Frankel & Curtis, of Lexington, and Wishmeyer and Nevin, Louisville. The latter firm designed the new First Presbyterian church.

The school board meeting was attended by all the members except W. E. Blanton. Chairman John Noland presided. The other members present were Dr. H. G. Sandlin, J. C. Chenault, D. B. McKinney and Z. T. Rice.

Drawings and designs of school buildings recently built in Kentucky and other states were exhibited before the board by all the bidders. The Weber firm, Newport, has done much work in Richmond and is very favorably known here. Mr. Weber will consult with the school board immediately as to plans for giving to Richmond a building that will take the place of Caldwell school destroyed by fire, and at the same time it is hoped to provide a building that will anticipate Richmond's educational requirements in the public school line for a hundred years to come.

There has been considerable agitation since Caldwell graded school burned to consolidate the grades with Madison High school on the hill, and abandon the Caldwell site on North Second street. Preliminary estimates are said to have shown that the taxpayers of the city can be saved about $2,000 a year in maintenance by such a step. However, Architect Weber and the board will carefully consider the whole situation. After all phases have been canvassed, it is probable that a mass meeting of citizens and taxpayers will be called at the court house some night soon and the matter put up to them as to what they want done with the school situation in Richmond now.

FARM BUREAU PLANS TOBACCO MARKETING

Geoffrey Morgan Announces Program for Convention to Be Held March 30-31

(By Associated Press)

Louisville, March 23—Plans for marketing the tobacco crop of Kentucky will be one of the principal topics to come before the second annual convention of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, according to announcement made here today by Geoffrey Morgan, secretary of the organization. Other important matters are slated to come before the gathering. The convention will meet on March 30 and 31.

Marketing plans will be worked out at a conference of tobacco men on March 29, to which representatives of the various tobacco growing organizations have been invited. Invitations also have been sent to the United States Department of Agriculture and the Kentucky Department as well as growers from other states.

Among those who will attend this conference and later explain the plan adopted to the convention, will be C. H. Gustafson, of Meade, Neb., chairman of the marketing committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Grain Marketing Committee of Seventeen. Mr. Gustafson is one of the best known authorities on farmers' problems and has been dubbed "the busiest farmer."

A president, two vice presidents and a treasurer as well as three executive committeemen from the state at large will be elected, while district delegates from the second, fourth, sixth, eighth and tenth congressional districts will elect executive committeemen.

Women delegates will have their own separate meeting of March 31, according to Secretary Morgan, at which they will draw up definite plans for women's work in the county farm bureaus. These plans are to be submitted to the convention.

Reports of the various officials and county bureaus will be heard on the first day, as well as addresses on "Marketing of Tobacco and Grain," by C. H. Gustafson; "Women's Place in the Farm Bureau," Mrs. Charles Sewell, of Otterbein, Ind.; "Duties of the Farm Bureau Business Agent," J. S. Crenshaw, Hopkinsville, and a round table discussion led by T. C. Jones, business agent for the Christian county Farm Bureau.

SUNDAY KNOCKS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Also Critics of Y. M. C. A. in Sermon at Cincinnati—Tells Christians to Work

Cincinnati, March 23—Billy Sunday gave his views on the League of Nations at his afternoon service yesterday. He does not like it, and said so somewhat forcefully.

"We won't let the American flag be subservient to that of any nation on earth," he said, in a way that showed his audience exactly where he stood on this question.

"England hogged the League of Nations and made the American flag subservient to it, but when it was put up to America, this country said 'nothing doing!'"

"We don't intend to play second fiddle to Germany, England or any other nation on this earth."

Mr. Sunday's reference to the League of Nations was apart from his prepared sermon and was brought up by him after reference to the Monroe Doctrine and "its 28 words, that have kept this hemisphere free for 100 years."

Mr. Sunday also took a few moments aside from his text to defend the Y. M. C. A. from the criticism which was raised against it during the war activities. The Y. M. C. A., in his opinion, did the greatest work of any such agency during the war.

"I know who it is that's knocking the Y. M. C. A.," he said. "I've got the goods on them and I'm going to turn loose on them some of these days."

"How to Help Others," was the subject of his sermon and thorough suggestions and ideas, with some experiences and their results, that would help to promote personal work in the cause of Christ. His text was the same that he has used once before: "He that Wineth Souls Is Wise," from Proverbs.

Mr. Sunday urged church members to work for souls in the same way that politicians work, by a personal canvass that reaches every person in the community.

"Do you canvass your block to show who belongs to the church and who does not?" he asked. "The politicians do that, but church members do not. The politicians do it in order to get the people out to vote, but the church won't do it even to keep the devil out."

Mr. Sunday urged family prayer, a better knowledge of the Bible, love for the souls of men and women and a desire to see them saved, as essential to winning souls. The people who would be approached were classed by him in five divisions which "will take in every man and woman in Cincinnati, America and the world." These classifications, in his opinion, were:

"First, those who cannot attend church. Some have to work in hotels, restaurants, in your home on the railroads, steamships, certain institutions that have to keep going on the Sabbath the same as on any other day. That's one kind."

"Second, those who can but do not. I feel like hanging my head in shame to stand on a platform beneath the Stars and Stripes and tell you we've got seventy million in the United States that are not in any church. Seventy millions. We're a Christian nation at that! Those who can attend church but do not. There are multitudes that never darken a church door; the only time they are ever in there is when they die and they have to go around there as a pall-bearer."

"Third, those who can attend church and do and are not moved by the preaching. Some people come out of curiosity. I don't know perhaps you may be here for that purpose this afternoon. Somebody has vomited a lie in your ears. All right. If you believe a lie and come around and hear the truth, that's all right. I don't give a picayune why you are here, I've got more respect for you because you are here than I would have if you didn't come. It doesn't make any difference what brought you here."

"Fourth, those who can attend church and do and they are converted but they are not converted. There isn't a man or woman that won't go out of here with a new idea of God and a new hatred of sin. The spirit of God will convince you, but you need something you haven't got."

"Fifth, those that can attend church and do attend church and they are convicted and they are converted and they need strength and they need your help."

"That will touch very man and woman on earth—those five classes—and everywhere."

Sunday Raps Whisky
"It is as easy to bring heaven and hell together as it is to bring Jesus and whisky together. Holding a dollar in front of some fellow's eyes makes them blind to everything that's decent."

This is a part of the message that Billy Sunday gave at the tabernacle last night before the largest audience that has been addressed by the evangelist.

The sermon—Mr. Sunday's 31st in Cincinnati—was based on the story of "The Timid Woman." It told of the woman in the little town of Capernaum who sought to only touch the hem of the garments of Jesus that she might in this way receive His blessing.

The sermon was heard by 9,000 persons, and it brought 400 of them down the sawdust trail to profess or to reaffirm their faith in religion.

Mr. Sunday's sermon last night was in the nature of a plea to follow the example of the woman at Capernaum, who sought to touch the garment of Christ.

"It is not the sawdust trail, not the hand shake that saves you," Mr. Sunday said. "But it's Jesus Christ in the handshake that saves."

"Determine to get Jesus somehow. Don't stand still. Don't go back. Put out your hand. Touch the thing that Jesus Christ is in and the blessing will come to you."

The ways in which one might get to Jesus he said, were by touch by baptism, by confirmation, by confession or some such method.

Mr. Sunday again rapped Christian Science, Theosophy, spiritualism and the host of "m" hat "smack" of religion or teachings.

"Don't ask me to believe all your old junk until you have done something with it," he said when voicing his views.

"Theology bears the same relation to Christianity as botany does to flowers," he said at one point. "Botany can be wrong, but the flowers are not. Theology can be wrong, but not Christianity. He again ended his sermon with a prayer."

County Board of Education Files Amended Petition in Effort to Secure the Fund

An amended petition, setting forth further allegations in the suit by the Madison County Board of Education against the trustees of the Walters Collegiate Institute, has been filed by Attorneys R. C. Oldham and John Noland, representing the petitioners. This suit is on docket for trial at the May term of circuit court. Dr. Scott Says Blanton May Confess At Lunacy Hearing
(From Wednesday's Courier-Journal)

Lindsey R. Blanton, former assistant fire chief of Richmond, Ky., who is said to have become a pyromaniac, was arrested yesterday and charged with starting the fire in the garage at Beechhurst Sanatorium, where he was a patient, early Sunday morning. He is said practically to have admitted his guilt.

A $2,000 automobile, two Jersey cows and two horses, owned by Dr. H. B. Scott, proprietor of the sanatorium, were consumed in the blaze. Dr. Scott swore to warrant charging Blanton with arson. It is expected the prisoner will confess at the preliminary trial in police court this morning, Dr. Scott said.

Blanton was taken to the sanatorium from Richmond January 23. He said he was indicted there on a charge of firing a church, but that it was because one of the jurors was his enemy.

He was put through a Simon-Benet psychological test yesterday afternoon at the City Hospital by an expert, but the result will not be announced until Thursday, when it may be introduced in a lunacy trial.

The case today probably will be continued to allow time for three physicians, who have been called into consultation, to swear to a lunacy warrant.
